

Professional Biography of Allj Paradoxe

*Name: Kombozi Limani Alain

*Stage Name: Allj Paradoxe

*Other Names: First King Bwoy, ParaTrap, Doxe

*Born: October 5, 2000

*Nationality: Congolese

*Genres: Trap, Dancehall

*Active Since: 2017

*Label: Da Vision Group

Allj Paradoxe, born Kombozi Limani Alain, is a dynamic Congolese singer-songwriter and rapper, known for his innovative blend of Trap and Dancehall music. With a vibrant flair for performance and a keen sense of fashion, Allj has quickly emerged as a prominent figure in the African music scene.

Influenced by global icons such as Chris Brown and Tommy Lee Sparta, Allj Paradoxe infuses his sound with a unique energy that resonates deeply with his audience. His artistic journey began in 2017 when he founded Da Vision Group, a creative collective known for pushing the boundaries of contemporary Congolese music. Under this label, he has been able to cultivate his distinctive style and collaborate with various artists, establishing himself as a pillar of the Zombie Republic movement.

Allj Paradoxe's discography includes his acclaimed EP, "System Around," which showcases his multifaceted talent and innovative approach to songwriting and production. His notable tracks, including "Love," "Tell Me," "Fight Back," and "Don't Sleep," reflect his ability to address themes of love, resilience, and determination, resonating with a wide audience.

With a commitment to his craft and an ever-expanding portfolio, Allj Paradoxe is poised to make significant waves in the music industry. His vision is to continue evolving as an artist while inspiring others through his music and artistic expression, cementing his place as a leading figure in the modern Congolese music landscape.